

Introduction To Computer

This course aims at establishing the required background for students who are at their early undergraduate studies in Computer and Information Sciences. A set of key concepts will be learned in this course. These concepts represent an abstract introductory for topics like Computer History, Computer Types, Computer Architecture and peripherals, Resource Management and Operating Systems, Data Structures, Problem Solving and Algorithms, Computing Methods, Databases, Security, Software Engineering, Information Systems, Computer Networks, and Internet Technologies..